

Working with attachment issues in adults

This day is designed to introduce professionals to the theoretical and practical issues involved in working with attachment issues in adults.

Franca Brenninkmeyer, Co-ordinator of PAC's Child and Family Therapeutic Service, will show how professionals' own attachment patterns can be attuned to those of their clients, especially prospective adoptive parents and permanent placement carers, and utilised in the therapeutic process.

Facilitator: Franca Brenninkmeyer

- Thursday 21 October 2010
 - 10am – 4.30pm
 - North London

Benefits of attending

- Understand attachment patterns in adults and their origins
- Become more aware of your own attachment patterns and how they influence your intervention style
- Explore how your interventions could become more attuned by taking others' attachment styles into consideration
